The Fund's objective is to generate consistent uncorrelated returns from investments in a diversified portfolio of hedge funds. The Fund employs a flexible absolute return strategy, with about 55-65% of the portfolio invested in short-term liquid Private Credit strategies with strong collaterals, and the remainder in Arbitrage and other uncorrelated strategies. The Fund prioritizes niche opportunities with direct institutional-level access to managers, building on a vast network accumulated since 2009.

Monthly Commentary

Various inflation data continues to indicate more resilient, or even resurging, inflation. In March, however, risk assets shrugged it off, with equities running confidently to all-time highs and bonds also rebounding slightly. It did look like the last hurrah though, at least for now, as April started rather miserably for both asset classes. The policymakers will determine how well the “sell in May” adage works this year. Remarkably, the spotlight this year seems to have shifted from the Fed towards the US Treasury. Janet Yellen’s decision to run the record peacetime budget deficit for the last 12 months is definitely a key contributor to strong US growth. The clean-up of the intended and unintended consequences of the fiscal largesse will be on the next administration, apparently.

The Fund’s NAV increased 0.6% in March. Most private credit and all but one of the arbitrage strategies contributed positively. Year-to-date, arbitrage performed slightly better than private credit, justifying our drive to increase the weight of the former since last summer. Overall, the Fund returned 2% net in Q1 and is on track for our target 8% uncorrelated return for the year.

In March we increased our allocation to three arbitrage strategies, all in various forms of fixed income arbitrage. We also initiated a very small position in a high-return litigation finance opportunity. In April and May, we should be getting a couple of redemption proceeds from private credit initiated a few months ago; we plan to deploy them into arbitrage.
